8 STATEMENT OF FACTS:

9 1. The World Health Organization reported in 2004 that the United States
10 has the highest annual prevalence rate of twenty-six percent mental illness
11 among a comparison group of fourteen developing and developed
12 countries.

13 2. According to the 65th World Health Assembly held in May 2012,
14 adolescents are perceived as a healthy age group, yet an estimated twenty 15 percent of them experience a mental health problem. Depression is the 16 main cause of worldwide disability among adolescents, and suicide is the 17 second most common cause of death among young people.

18 3. In the King County results of the statewide 2010 Healthy Youth Survey,
19 twenty-four percent of eighth graders, twenty-seven percent of tenth
20 graders and twenty-six percent of twelfth graders self-reported feeling

21 depressed. Poor mental health is strongly related to other health conditions
22 and affects development outcomes in young people, including lower
23 educational achievements, substance abuse, violence, and poor
24 reproductive and sexual health.

25 4. According to the 2009 federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health
26 Services Administration's National Survey on Drug Use and Health, 23.5
27 million people aged twelve or older needed treatment for illicit drug or 28 alcohol abuse problem. Only 2.6 million, or eleven percent, of those who 29 needed treatment, received it at a specialty facility.

30 5. States adopting recovery concepts as the guiding policy for their
31 behavioral health systems include Texas, Vermont, Nebraska,
32 Massachusetts, Delaware, California, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and 33 Wisconsin. The recovery approach is also guiding services in New 34 Zealand, Australia, Israel, the United Kingdom, and the Republic of 35 Ireland, among other countries.

36 6. In August 2010, using guidance from behavioral health leaders and 37 behavioral health system consumers in recovery, the Substance Abuse and 38 Mental Health Services Administration ("SAMHSA") defined recovery as:
39 "A process of change through which individuals improve their health and 40 wellness, live a self-directed life, and strive to reach their full potential."

41 7. Additionally, SAMHSA delineates four major dimensions that support a 42 life in recovery which a recovery and resiliency oriented behavioral health
43 system should include:

Health: overcoming or managing one's disease(s) as well as living in a physically and emotionally healthy way;

Home: a stable and safe place to live;

Purpose: meaningful daily activities, such as a job, school, volunteerism, family caretaking, or creative endeavors, and the independence, income and resources to participate in society; and

Community: relationships and social networks that provide support, friendship, love, and hope.

8. A recovery and resiliency oriented behavioral health system must be trauma-informed. Multiple studies have demonstrated strong links between trauma, substance abuse, and mental illness. People with histories of trauma are more likely to face homelessness, addiction and mental illness, placing them at further risk for victimization and trauma.

Homelessness, substance abuse and mental illness are outcomes of, and risk factors for, future trauma.

9. The values, principles and goals of a trauma-informed, recovery and resiliency oriented framework fit well within the vision, mission, principles, and goals of the King County Strategic Plan: Working Together for One King County. The vision statement of the Strategic Plan states: "A diverse and dynamic community with a healthy economy and environment where all people and businesses have an opportunity to thrive." The mission statement goes on to state: "King County government provides fiscally responsible, quality-driven local and regional services for 67 healthy, safe, and vibrant communities." The explicit purpose of a

68 recovery and resiliency oriented behavioral health system is to assist
69 people to thrive by providing quality services with a focus on health,
70 safety and connection to community.

71 10. In 2000, King County recognized the desirability of moving beyond
72 maintenance as a goal and adopted Ordinance 13974, establishing
73 recovery as the goal, defining recovery and requiring reporting of client
74 progress for working age adults based on definitions of dependent, less 75 dependent and recovered and outcomes related to housing stability and 76 employment.

77 11. Ordinance 13974 was adopted early in the process of development of 78 the recovery model and was based on a limited understanding of the 79 concepts of recovery, without the benefit of research on best practices and 80 the experience of other systems in providing successful transition and 81 limited only to working age adults.

82 12. The Washington State Legislature amended the Community Mental 83 Health Services Act, chapter 71.24 RCW, to include recovery concepts in 84 2005.

85 13. In 2005, the council adopted Ordinance 15327, which approved a
86 recovery plan that included an implementation plan for the period of 2005-
87 2010.

88 14. The goals of the 2005 recovery plan have been achieved.

15. While much progress has been made, the five year recovery plan for mental health was the first stage in changing to a recovery and resiliency oriented behavioral health system that includes recovery for both mental illness and substance use disorder.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF KING COUNTY:

SECTION 1. Ordinance 15327, Section 3, and K.C.C. 2.43.005 are each hereby amended to read as follows:

~~C. In order to succeed in promoting recovery for persons in need in King County, the mental health service system shall transform itself from one based on the goals and principles of community support and maintenance to one based on the goals and principles of recovery and resilience. 133 apply throughout this chapter unless the context clearly requires otherwise.

134 A. "Behavioral health" means mental health and a life free of substance use 135 disorders.

136 B. "Behavioral health system" means those agencies that only provide mental 137 health services, those that only provide substance use disorders treatment, or those 138 agencies that provide both types of services.

139 C. "Recovery" means a process in which an individual achieves management of 140 the individual's symptoms and regains or develops sufficient skills and autonomy to 141 enable the individual to live, work and participate fully in the community.

142 D. "Resiliency" means an innate capacity that empowers people across the life
143 span to successfully meet life's challenges with a sense of self-determination, mastery,
144 and hope.

145 E. "Trauma-informed framework" means an approach to engage an individual 146 with a history of trauma that recognizes the presence of trauma symptoms and 147 acknowledges the impact that trauma has had on the individual's life.

153 focused system offers respect, information, connection and hope.
